

FAQs

Question:

In the past, we have had our students in early field experiences obtain permission to work with students one-on-one in the classroom. Is this a BCOE requirement? In other words, do students still have to get permissions slips signed by parents to work one-on-one with students?

Answer:

If the assignment is just for a class (and is not connected at all to research), it falls under the KSU IRB "Student Class Project Guidelines and Procedures." Note that in these guidelines, there is a special statement about Bagwell:

Projects conducted by Kennesaw State University's (KSU) Bagwell College of Education (BCOE) students as part of their course requirements within the local school systems must be covered under a fully executed Memorandum of Understanding (MOU). The MOU must have been reviewed/approved by KSU's Legal Affairs and identify expectations between BCOE and either the school district's Board of Education or the individual school hosting BCOE students.

See <http://research.kennesaw.edu/irb/project-guidelines-procedures.php> for the full text of the IRB's "Student Class Project Guidelines & Procedures."